A SHAKSPEARE TEA. The Young Ladies' Pickett Society of the Fourth Presbyterian Church, composed of the members of Mrs. V. K. Hendricks's class in the Sunday school, gave an entertainment yesterday afternoon and last evening, at the residence of Mrs. Hendricks, on North Meridian street. It was called a Shakspeare tea. The guests were received by Mrs, Hendricks and Mrs. Alex. Jameson, the latter the president of the society. The first parlor represented Romeo and Juliet. Miss Alice Foster, in a classic gown of yellow, represented Juliet, and Miss Emma Pearsons, in lavender, took the character of the nurse. In the second room was "A Winter's Tale." The room was adorned in white, and at a daintily arranged table Mrs. John Somerville, as Hermione, and Miss Mary Noble, as Perdita, served chocolate. The library was in pink, and "As You Like It" was the play chosen for that room. Miss Grace Foster was Celia, Miss Alice Graydon as Rosalind, Mr. Edward Kingsbury as the Duke, Miss Elba Matthews as the court lady, Miss Lillian Miller as the shepherdess, and Mr. Thomas Layman as Touchstone were in charge. Homemade candies were dispensed by the characters in the room. The dining room was reserved for the "Merchant of Venice," with Miss Vinnedge as Portia. Ices were served there. Miss Anna Plummer was a nun, and Miss Fisher, Miss Sada Jakes and Miss Weeks represented the three daughters of King Lear, and Miss Alice Somerville Ophelia. Other members of the class taking different characters were: Susie Cully, Leonore Blair, Fannie Gapen, Loretta Rillmyre, Alice Higgins, Edith Fisher, May Noble, Cassandra Weeks, Minnie Weeks, Janette Fisher, Ella Elliott, Lena Southard, Jessie Patterson, Rose Hill and Daisy Dyer. In the hall was a witch's caldron, and Misses Lucy Plummer, Avis, Morse and Vinnie Turner were the witches, and from their caldron they served lemonade. The greatest attraction was the Darley collection of Shakspearean illustrations, owned by Mr. Henry D. Pierce, which were hung on the walls. The certificate of sale was also shown. The collection is the XIX set, and is not only valuable, but rare. The pictures are in sepia, and are wonderfully drawn. They are a fine study. The collection is bound. The outer covering is a mat, then the picture, next the selection describing the scene of the picture, which makes it desirable as a book or as a hanging picture. In the evening there was an additional entertainment. The banishment scene from "As You Like It" was given by Miss Alice Graydon, as Rosaline Foster, as Celia, and Mr. Edward Kingsbury, as the Duke. Miss Parr sang, Miss Jessie Patterson played a plano solo, there were recitations and Hamlet's ghost walked. The favors were cards, with illustrated Shakspearean quotations. The entertainment was the seventh annual one given by the society. The proceeds are to be used for charitable purposes.

Alabama-Street People on Hand to Fight the Paving Ordinances.

City Council, However, Did Not Grapple with Them-The Amended Market Ordinance Passed.

The Alabama-street pavement ordinances did not come up in the Council, as expected, last night. Long before the hour for the convening of the Council a score or more of the property owners on the street came into the room and took seats in the rear, prepared to present their arguments against the passage of the ordinances if they should priced Corset. You will be called up. The ordinances had not been sent in from the Board of Public Works. An ordinance was introduced by Chairman Rauh, of the finance committee, authorizing the city controller to refund the $300,000 in bonds which will fall due July 1. The bonds to be refunded are known as series "C," bearing date of July 1, 1874, and are due in July of mis year. The city controller, by the provisions of the ordinance, is authorized to refund them at 4 per cent., payable semi-annually, the bonds to run for thirty years. The ordinance was referred to the finance committee.

DR. KAHLO ELECTED.

Board of Safety Chooses Him to Succeed Dr. Earp as Police Surgeon. Dr. George D. Kahlo is the new police surgeon. The Board of Public Safety met yesterday morning and appointed him to the vacancy caused by the resignation of Dr. Earp, which was accepted. About fifteen physicians met in the office of the Board of Health yesterday morning before the meeting of the safety board, and after the board had convened the physicians went before it with a petition signed by nearly all the physicians of the city asking for the appointment of Dr. Oliver. Dr. Hays, of the health board, said that he urged the appointment of Dr. Oliver for the best interests of the Mayor and the administration. He said the appointment of Dr. Oliver would please the public generally and the medical profession particularly. Dr. Stilson seconded all that Dr. Hays said. Dr. Ham-mond, of the health board, was not present, but his name was appended to the petition asking for the appointment of Dr. Oliver. In answer to a question from Commissioner White Dr. Hays said he did not consider Dr. Kahlo incompetent.

As the members of the Board of Health were leaving the room they were met by Mayor Denny and asked if they appeared in their official or individual capacity. They answered that they appeared as physicians, to which the Mayor replied that he simply wanted to know if the health board was trying to influence appointments of the safety board. Dr. Marsee, acting as spokesman for the doctors, also asked the board to appoint Dr. Oliver. He said the board had accepted the resignation of a man who had left a good record and done his work well and it would be unfortunate if it should take a step backwards. Upon the vote Com-missioner Ruckle voted for Dr. Oliver, The petition presented in urging the appointment of Dr. Oliver is the strongest ever signed in this community by the medical profession, and Dr. Oliver is being complimented on all sides over the heartiness

English's-"Playmates."

Bessie Bonehill, in her musical comedy, "Playmates," captured the audience at English's last night. She is a chic male impersenator, but her introduction as England's pride must be taken with a grain of salt, or else she has imposed outrageously on the British public. She is intelligent, a good dancer and good tooker in boy's clothes, but she lacks voice. Her costermonger songs are little more than acceptably rendered. The comedians, Charles and William Jerome, serve to render most of the fun, which consists in the Bowery style of ridiculing the make-up of Annette Zelna, an awful caricature on the elderly spinster. W. R. Seeley, who unblushingly advertises himself as the author of "Playmates," is decidely out of place when he attempts to be funny, but with Kirwin West furnishes a good musical specialty. West's flute playing was a treat, and he was given a welldeserved encore. Sig. A. Borelli plays the piano with both hands and feet, and greatly amused the gallery. Bessie Tannehill dances like a whirlwind, a la Lottie Collins, only more so. The piece is staged up to date and the play, as a whole, hangs together with more interest than many of the slough of farces perpetrated these rocky

Park-"She." Those who want to see an unusual stage performance, something radically different from the conventional drama of the sensational kind, will find it at the Park Theater this week in Edwin Barbour's Oriental romance entitled "She." As is well known the book from which this play was adapted is a wild and weird story that deals with strange characters, and Mr. Barbour deserves the credit of having very adroitly depicted Mr. Haggard's mythical creations in real life. While it is true that the leading characters in this strange but fascinating play have never existed outside of the vivid imagination of the author of "She," the production as given by Mr. Pearson's big and capable company is one that is highly interesting by reason of its novelty. The elaboration of the story in the proogue tends to make the narrative cicor. and as the play progresses the strong features of the novel are not only retained. but presented with numerous startling ef-

The scenery representing the various places mentioned in the story imparts an unusual realism to the production. This is especially true of the scene where the Queen, who has lived for 2,300 years, steps into the mysterious fire, and in an instant is changed from a beautiful woman to the condition of a shriveled up and hideous mummy. The company is a good one throughout. Miss Ethel Raynes plays the eading part and is given excellent support. There is a strong comedy element interwoven with the play, which is in the hands of two very clever comedians. The engagement is for the entire week. The house was crowded yesterday afternoon and again

Billy Plimmer's Athletic and Specialty Company began a week's engagement ment with a matinee at the Empire yesterday afternoon. The performance opens with Murray and Alden, sketch artists, who were well received. Little Carrie, in her sleigh-bell specialty, Collins and Collins. in their singing and dancing, Miss Nellie Waters, who sings several songs something after the order of Maggie Cline, a clever horizontal bar performance by Ramza and Arno, the Sankey brothers, contortionists, the McNulty sisters, in duets and pedestal clog dancing, and Edward Leslie, in his eccentric portrayals, make up a pleasing vaudeville programme. The performance concludes with Billy Plimmer, the champion bantam weight, in a three-round set-to with Joe McGrath, Ireland's champion, who win applause by their fancy boxing.

Amusement Notes. The call for seats for the Sousa concert vesterday was very gratifying, and it shows that Sousa is becoming very popular here. The concert will attract the music-loving people of the city in large numbers to Tomlinson Hall next Friday night. *DeWolf Hopper's "Panjandrum" Opera Company, that will begin a three days' engagement at English's Monday night, has early seventy-five members, not counting Mr. Hopper's menagerie, which includes two Spanish ponies, two white mules, twelve white doves, several monkeys and other animals. The sale of seats for the engagement will commence Thursday morning. Annie Ward Tiffany, who will present her new play, "Lady Blarney," at English's Opera House Thursday, Friday and Saturday, is to the female line of Irish comedy what Joseph Murphy is to the male line She can play the roughest of Irish parts, yet make them refined and true to nature.

Mrs. Dr. Buchanan Files Her Complaint in the Superior Court.

She Charges Her Husband with Disregarding His Marriage Vows-Hammond Loses Again-Other Courts.

The disturbed domestic condition of the household of Albert E. Buchanan, No. 950 North Pennsylvania street, which has given rise in the last month to much comment and gossip, culminated yesterday afternoon in a suit for divorce filed by the wife, Nellie H. Buchanan. Mrs. Buchanan is represented by attorney Lewis Walker. The complaint is lengthy, and sets out in detail an extensive list of allegations, prominent among which are charges of infidelity. The couple were married, as the complaint shows, on Jan. 30, 1886, and have one child, a daughter, aged two and a half years. The plaintiff avers that she has been a good and true wife to the defendant, but charges that he has repaid her wifely devotion with neglect and wrongful acts. Numerous acts of infidelity are specified, and the names of two young women are coupled with that of the defendant. Cruel and inhuman treatment is charged, and the plaintiff avers that the defendant has lost all affection for herself and child; that he neglected the child when it was ill, and, in fact, has become estranged from his family through immoral practices. It is alleged that the associations of the defendant are bad, and that he frequently remained away all night without giving his wife an explanation. He is also accused of having threatened to kill her. One paragraph of the complaint alleges that the defendant privately ordered the proprietors of stores to refuse his wife credit, and concealed such fact from her in order that she might be publicly humiliated by such refusal. It is charged that the defendant went to the world's fair without informing the plaintiff, for the purpose of associating with persons unknown to her, and was in the habit of attending the theater with others and concealing the same from her.

On Jan. 20, the plaintiff says, her husband planned with his brothers to clandestinely remove from his home much of the furniture, and for the purpose of successfully carrying out his purpose invited her to accompany him to the theater, and while she was thus decoyed from home the pictures, bedroom set and other articles belonging to her were removed from the house and carted away through alleys to a place of concealment. Then she alleges that the defendant took her home from the theater, left her at the gate and went away. She entered the house and found the rooms despoiled of furniture. She was handed a letter by the servant, which announced her husband's final purpose of a separation. This, she avers, was the first information she had of his intentions. The plaintiff describes certain real estate and claims that t is owned by herself and the defendant jointly, and she asks that an order be issued restraining the defendant from disposing of the same. The court is also requested to enjoin the defendant from entering the home of the plaintiff or from interfering with the property in her charge. It is further contended that the defendant ought to pay into court a reasonable sum for her support, pending the litigation, and an amount sufficiently large to enable her to prosecute the case. A decree of divorce is prayed for, with reasonable alimony and the custody of the child.

Must Pay the Commission.

The Superior Court, in general term, yesterday heard the oral argument in the case of C. A. Bookwalter against R. R. Hammond, on appeal from the lower court. The judgment of the lower court was affirmed. Bookwalter brought suit to recover $600 commission money alleged to be due him for the sale of forty acres of land owned by Hammond. It was shown that two years ago Hammond agreed to sell the land to the State Board of Agriculture for $500 per acre, but the trade was not consummated and the owner sought the assistance of the firm of Bookwalter & Aiken, whom he desired to dispose of the land for him. It was sold to a syndicate for $600 per acre. The agents afterward brought suit for their commission, and secured a judgment in the lower court. The defendant appealed to the Superior Court, but without ayail.

$37,000 Judgment Against Johnson. At the death of Henry C. Catherwood, in 1872, he left 388 shares of stock of the Citizens' street-railway to his widow, who is now Mrs. R. G. Phelps, and who was appointed administratrix of the estate. The shares were assigned to John Carlisle for $6,160, payable in ten years. The report of the sale was not made to the court, and afterward the stock certificates passed into the possession of Congressman Tom Johnson, the Cleveland street-railway man. It is now alleged that Johnson and Carlisle have been receiving the dividends on the stock for years. Yesterday the Superior Court, in general term, affirmed the decision of the lower court in litigation over this matter and rendered judgment for $37,-

000 in favor of the Catherwood estate. They Didn't Want the Stock. The Citizens' Bank of Noblesville, sued recently by receiver Hawkins to collect $7,900 stock in the Indianapolis National, filed an answer in the federal court yesterday in which it is charged that Theodore P. Haughey as president of both banks, in violation of the banking laws, transferred to the credit of the Noblesville bank July 1885, the stock which the receiver is now trying to assess. On the ground that the latter institution had no lawful right to own stock in another bank the answer claims that it is not liable for the receiver's assessment.

The Cooper Insurance Company of Ohio, sued by the receiver to collect $12,000 stock assessment, answered yesterday, making a similar claim to the one advanced by the Noblesville bank.

The Cordes Divorce Case. The Cordes divorce case will be heard by Judge Winters on March 12. The date was set yesterday at the request of the attorneys on both sides. Mrs. Cordes is still at the California House. It is said that Dr. Fletcher will show that she is sane when called to the stand. The physician was appointed by the court to investigate the condition of the woman on the statement being made by her husband's attorneys that the alleged cruelties complained of existed only in her imagination.

Burglar Gets Five Years. Albert Hoersch was tried by a jury in the Criminal Court yesterday on the charge of grand larceny. He was accused of stealing a quantity of jewelry from the home of James McKenzie, No. 381 College avenue, on the night of Jan. 17. Hoersch was arrested by detective Thornton, a few days after the crime, while in the act of selling the jewelry to a Meridian-street pawn broker. The prisoner was sent to the penitentiary for five years.

Wants the Injunction Dissolved. Wm. Brevoort, a Knox county farmer, who was enjoined some weeks ago by Judge Baker, of the federal court, from building a levee near Vincennes upon application of the Cairo, Vincennes & Chicago Railroad Company, yesterday filed a demurrer and petition to have the injunction dissolved,. alleging that the levee in question is absolutely necessary to the drainage of a large tract of valuable land.

Three Tickets in the Field for the Annual Election To-Morrow.

The election of officers of the Marion Club will be held to-morrow, from 4 to 9 o'clock p. m., under the Australian system of voting. There are three tickets in the field, and the friends of the various candidates on each are exerting themselves in every direction. There are several names that appear on each of the three tickets. The tickets are the "Regular," "Hustler" and "Independent." County Treasurer Holt yesterday made his report to the County Commissioners of the condition of the county officers' funds, in compliance with the act of the Legislature of 1891, fixing the compensation and prescribing the duties of certain State and county officers. This is the first report under the new "fee-and-salary law," and shows that during the year the sheriff, who is the only official just now affected by the new law, collected on his salary of
